The image shows a large grid of binary symbols, likely a 2D barcode or a matrix code. The grid is composed of small black and white squares arranged in a regular pattern. The symbols represent binary data, with some characters appearing more frequently than others. The overall pattern is highly repetitive and structured.

The image displays a 60x60 grid of colored symbols, each representing a feature map element from an intermediate layer in a neural network. The columns are labeled at the top with values 240, 250, 260, 270, and 280. The rows are labeled on the left with values 0, 10, 20, 30, 40, and 50. The symbols are color-coded according to their activation values, with a color gradient ranging from black (low activation) to white (high activation). The symbols include various geometric shapes like triangles, squares, diamonds, and crosses, as well as other characters such as asterisks, question marks, and letters. The overall pattern shows a complex spatial distribution of activations across the feature maps.
